Code of conduct not respected

May 31st, 2016 - EU together with Facebook, Twitter, YouTube and Microsoft unveiled a code of conduct that includes a series of commitments to combat the spread of illegal hate speech online in Europe.

Věra Jourová, EU Commissioner for Justice: "This agreement is an important step forward to ensure that the internet remains a place of free and democratic expression, where European values and laws are respected. I welcome the commitment of worldwide IT companies to review the majority of valid notifications for removal of illegal hate speech in less than 24 hours and remove or disable access to such content, if necessary."

December 2016 - A report commissioned by Mrs Jourova showed that compliance with the code is far from satisfactory.

According to this report, the companies reviewed 40% of the recorded cases in less than 24 hours. After 48 hours the figure is more than 80%.

Many differences between countries:

- * France & Germany: 50 % of racists comments deleted
- * Austria: 11 %
- * Italia: 4 %
